

Присоседившись таким образом, Михаил Петрович обеспечил себе навеки место в дамской космонавтике и, естественно, в истории человечества. Можно представить, с каким увлечением ставшая уже полностью Космонавткой прекрасная часть человечества будет смотреть в 2084 году фильм "Чайка в Лондоне", празднуя.... тний юбилей со дня рождения Терешковой, (А в 4084г.!!!) и, конечно, в сущности юбилей Михаила Петровича.

Right: The visit to Britain of Cosmonaut Valentina Nikolayeva-Tereshkova was one of the main popular events of last month. Her programme was extremely heavy and, for a lady who is expecting a baby, her powers of resistance were really amazing. Everywhere she went she received a rousing welcome and her stay throughout was a great boost for British-Soviet relations. The two-shift reception at the Soviet Embassy brought there the Foreign Secretary and Mrs. Butler (seen here shaking hands with the VIP visitor) Transport Minister Marples (drinking wine with relish) and Mrs. Marples, Lord Dundee, Mr. Peter Thomas, Sir Keith and Lady Joseph (trying, unsuccessfully, to avoid drinking vodka) Air Minister Hugh Fraser and many other personalities including, of course, almost all Heads of Diplomatic Missions in London and their Services Attachés and other diplomats from almost all embassies and High Commissions bar, naturally, those of Korea, Vietnam and the Latin American nations not having relations with Moscow. Our photograph (right below) shows the Soviet visitor with H.E. the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Soldatova and (in the background) M. M. Mikhail P. Lyubimov, the Soviet 3rd Secretary who acted as interpreter. M. and Mme. Soldatov were almost constantly in the company of the visitor and must have felt tremendous satisfaction at the success of the visit.
